WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 18, 1886.
REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The republican caucus of the state of Wisconsin is requested to elect delegates to a state convention to be held in the capitol, at Madison, on Wednesday, Sept. 3, 1886.

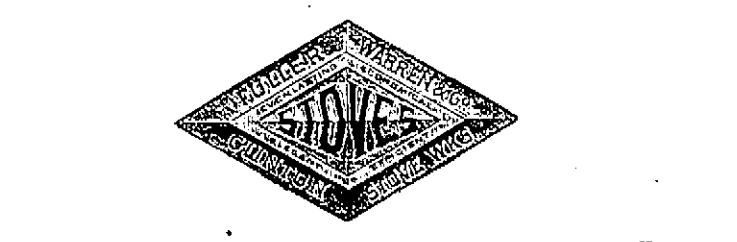

At 12 o'clock, noon, for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates of the republican party for the several state offices, to be voted for at the ensuing general election in November, each county will be entitled to delegates as follows: the representation being based upon the number of votes cast for Mr. Blaine in 1884, one delegate to each 500 votes, or major fraction of 500—each county entitled to one delegate, without reference to number of votes cast.

COUNTY.	Votes for Blaine in 1884.	No. of delegates.	COUNTY.	Votes for Blaine in 1884.	No. of delegates.

IRELAND IN COUNCIL.

GOSSIP REGARDING THE CHICAGO IRISH LEAGUE CONVENTION.

Prospect of a Warm Time Between the Moderate and Extreme Men—Arrival of the Parnell Ambassadors—O'Brien Talks of the Situation, and is Checked by David.
CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Reports were current Tuesday evening that a compromise had been effected between the opposing factions in the Irish National League by which peace would reign at the national convention. A distribution of offices was mentioned as the basis of the arrangement. John Devoy at a late hour Tuesday night indignantly denied that any such arrangement was on the tapis. "We are not going to either to win or lose," said he. "We prefer to be beaten rather than to compromise. Any such overture would be spurned, and they knew it. We are fighting both men and measures, and our only demand is that the tricksters who are not in full accord with Parnell be barred from all official connection with the league. Our grievances are too well defined to make any compromise possible that would not involve the loss of our self-respect and the abjuration of our principles."

The plan by which the delegates to the convention were to receive tickets of admission was the subject of much discussion. O'Brien, the national treasurer, fell through in consequence of the reserved gentleman being detained at a meeting of the clergy in Detroit. The plan was that only the representatives which were to be permitted representation in the convention. The Palmer house people are highly indignant at the plan, which they claim was not in the plan of the convention. They allege that weeks ago secret circulars were sent broadcast through the country asking branches which did not propose to send delegates to forward blank proxies to certain parties in this city. John Devoy declared that he had good grounds for the statement that the proposed attempt to anticipate the duties of the committee on credentials in this city. John Devoy declared that he had good grounds for the statement that the proposed attempt to anticipate the duties of the committee on credentials in this city. John Devoy declared that he had good grounds for the statement that the proposed attempt to anticipate the duties of the committee on credentials in this city.

The opposition has agreed upon its plans. In the event of the nomination of a temporary chairman who is allied to neither faction, they will reserve their opposition until the election of a permanent president. But if the temporary officer proposed is an Egantio, they will force the fighting from the start, and if defeated by overwhelming odds, will probably walk out of the convention in a body. The minimum strength of the opposition is placed at 20. A large number of delegates were at the rooms of the Palmer house committee Tuesday night, the states represented including New York, Michigan, New Jersey, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Iowa. Messrs. Sullivan, Finerty and other leaders of the administration party were busily engaged all Tuesday in perfecting arrangements for the gathering. The opposition professes to object to the proposed plan of the Palmer house committee Tuesday night, the states represented including New York, Michigan, New Jersey, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Iowa.

A large force of men were busily engaged Tuesday night in decorating Central Music hall with large strips of canvas bearing fiery inscriptions. It is stated on good authority that the administration party has agreed to support Judge Moran, of this city, for president of the national league. The opposition says, however, that they are advised that he can not give the necessary time, and that the movement is only a trick to occasion an early vacancy in the office which can be filled by the executive committee.

Messrs. Redmond, Devoy, and O'Brien, the parliamentary delegates to the Irish National league convention, were met at Michigan City Tuesday afternoon, for the reception committee representing the Egantio wing of the convention. If there was a Palmer house commitment in the party he did not make his presence known. Mr. Finerty was spokesman welcomed the delegates to the city and said: "However much we may differ in policy we are agreed upon a common principle and our object and desire is to aid the cause of Ireland and to help her to win liberty, glory and prosperity."

Mr. O'Brien at once replied, speaking for his colleagues: "We are most grateful for the kindly manner in which we have been received on the occasion of our approach to the great city of the west. As Mr. Finerty has said, however much we may differ our methods of policy, our common object is to secure Irish liberty and independence. We came here to return thanks, not only to the Irish-Americans of the National league, but to all Americans, and also to represent our great leader, Charles Stewart Parnell, for whom we, in our land, have the highest regard."

After those expressions of welcome and reply all formality was thrown off, and the visitors and their hosts received the hearty greetings which had been evoked at their meetings. Mr. O'Brien, who seemed by common consent of his colleagues to be the spokesman of the party, expressed himself at some length on the situation in Ireland. He was asked what he believed would be the policy and fate of the Salisbury government.

Mr. O'Brien thought whether Salisbury liked it or not, he would be driven by the clamor of his friends within a very few months to apply to parliament for coercion. "Then will come the day of war," said Mr. O'Brien.

"What does that term imply?" was asked. "Thus far the National league has done nothing to encourage organized resistance to rule, but on the other hand it has straitened its influence with the tenants to induce them to make sacrifices, so long as there was a hope of a parliamentary settlement of the land question. Now that the hope has been abandoned, the tenants of the landlord party and its English friends, the National league could no longer, if it desired, induce or force the tenants to pay rents which have already brought them to the verge of bankruptcy. What the future action of the league will be I am not in a position to say. All I know is that without the National league the tenants will be driven by an irresistible impulse to the adoption of the system of passive resistance which has already been found so effective, and to attempting it."

Here Mr. Devoy, who was standing by, made what seemed to be a gesture of warning to the speaker to beware of saying too much. Mr. O'Brien took heed and resumed.

By legal methods to secure for themselves the relief which the English landlords have already given to their own tenants. And in this I believe they will have the entire good will and sympathy of the English masses."

"And where will Mr. Parnell be?" "As always, Mr. Parnell will be found at the helm."

The train arrived in Chicago at 10 o'clock. Carriages were in waiting, and the entire party was immediately driven to the Grand Pacific hotel.

The plan by which the delegates to the convention were to receive tickets of admission was the subject of much discussion. O'Brien, the national treasurer, fell through in consequence of the reserved gentleman being detained at a meeting of the clergy in Detroit. The plan was that only the representatives which were to be permitted representation in the convention. The Palmer house people are highly indignant at the plan, which they claim was not in the plan of the convention. They allege that weeks ago secret circulars were sent broadcast through the country asking branches which did not propose to send delegates to forward blank proxies to certain parties in this city. John Devoy declared that he had good grounds for the statement that the proposed attempt to anticipate the duties of the committee on credentials in this city. The opposition has agreed upon its plans. In the event of the nomination of a temporary chairman who is allied to neither faction, they will reserve their opposition until the election of a permanent president. But if the temporary officer proposed is an Egantio, they will force the fighting from the start, and if defeated by overwhelming odds, will probably walk out of the convention in a body. The minimum strength of the opposition is placed at 20. A large number of delegates were at the rooms of the Palmer house committee Tuesday night, the states represented including New York, Michigan, New Jersey, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Iowa.

A large force of men were busily engaged Tuesday night in decorating Central Music hall with large strips of canvas bearing fiery inscriptions. It is stated on good authority that the administration party has agreed to support Judge Moran, of this city, for president of the national league. The opposition says, however, that they are advised that he can not give the necessary time, and that the movement is only a trick to occasion an early vacancy in the office which can be filled by the executive committee.

Messrs. Redmond, Devoy, and O'Brien, the parliamentary delegates to the Irish National league convention, were met at Michigan City Tuesday afternoon, for the reception committee representing the Egantio wing of the convention. If there was a Palmer house commitment in the party he did not make his presence known. Mr. Finerty was spokesman welcomed the delegates to the city and said: "However much we may differ in policy we are agreed upon a common principle and our object and desire is to aid the cause of Ireland and to help her to win liberty, glory and prosperity."

Mr. O'Brien at once replied, speaking for his colleagues: "We are most grateful for the kindly manner in which we have been received on the occasion of our approach to the great city of the west. As Mr. Finerty has said, however much we may differ our methods of policy, our common object is to secure Irish liberty and independence. We came here to return thanks, not only to the Irish-Americans of the National league, but to all Americans, and also to represent our great leader, Charles Stewart Parnell, for whom we, in our land, have the highest regard."

After those expressions of welcome and reply all formality was thrown off, and the visitors and their hosts received the hearty greetings which had been evoked at their meetings. Mr. O'Brien, who seemed by common consent of his colleagues to be the spokesman of the party, expressed himself at some length on the situation in Ireland. He was asked what he believed would be the policy and fate of the Salisbury government.

Mr. O'Brien thought whether Salisbury liked it or not, he would be driven by the clamor of his friends within a very few months to apply to parliament for coercion. "Then will come the day of war," said Mr. O'Brien.

"What does that term imply?" was asked. "Thus far the National league has done nothing to encourage organized resistance to rule, but on the other hand it has straitened its influence with the tenants to induce them to make sacrifices, so long as there was a hope of a parliamentary settlement of the land question. Now that the hope has been abandoned, the tenants of the landlord party and its English friends, the National league could no longer, if it desired, induce or force the tenants to pay rents which have already brought them to the verge of bankruptcy. What the future action of the league will be I am not in a position to say. All I know is that without the National league the tenants will be driven by an irresistible impulse to the adoption of the system of passive resistance which has already been found so effective, and to attempting it."

Here Mr. Devoy, who was standing by, made what seemed to be a gesture of warning to the speaker to beware of saying too much. Mr. O'Brien took heed and resumed.

By legal methods to secure for themselves the relief which the English landlords have already given to their own tenants. And in this I believe they will have the entire good will and sympathy of the English masses."

"And where will Mr. Parnell be?" "As always, Mr. Parnell will be found at the helm."

The train arrived in Chicago at 10 o'clock. Carriages were in waiting, and the entire party was immediately driven to the Grand Pacific hotel.

Parnell's Urgent Call.
LONDON, Aug. 15.—Mr. Parnell has issued an urgent whip to the members of the Irish parliamentary party, requesting their attendance in the house of commons on Thursday, the day fixed for the opening of the new parliament, and upon which the queen's speech will be delivered. The Irish says it is conclusive evidence that the Irish leader does not intend to await

IRELAND IN COUNCIL.

GOSSIP REGARDING THE CHICAGO IRISH LEAGUE CONVENTION.

Prospect of a Warm Time Between the Moderate and Extreme Men—Arrival of the Parnell Ambassadors—O'Brien Talks of the Situation, and is Checked by David.
CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Reports were current Tuesday evening that a compromise had been effected between the opposing factions in the Irish National League by which peace would reign at the national convention. A distribution of offices was mentioned as the basis of the arrangement. John Devoy at a late hour Tuesday night indignantly denied that any such arrangement was on the tapis. "We are not going to either to win or lose," said he. "We prefer to be beaten rather than to compromise. Any such overture would be spurned, and they knew it. We are fighting both men and measures, and our only demand is that the tricksters who are not in full accord with Parnell be barred from all official connection with the league. Our grievances are too well defined to make any compromise possible that would not involve the loss of our self-respect and the abjuration of our principles."

The plan by which the delegates to the convention were to receive tickets of admission was the subject of much discussion.
